He lay huddled and crumpled near where the little seep-stream dripped from the ledge of mica. Not far away lay another huddled heap, rotted red silk, long hair, bones. Beyond it the cavern stretched away. He could see that its rooms and passages went much farther than he had known. He saw it with the same uncaring interest with which he saw Tinaral's body and his own body. He felt a mild regret. It was only fair that he should die here with the man he had killed. It was right. Nothing was wrong. But something in him ached, not the sharp body pain, a long ache, lifelong..On his rides, he sometimes passed an old house on a hill among great oaks. Her hands came away covered with blood-streaked horse sweat. "There, there," she said. The brave girl, the brave heart." The mare put her head down and shivered all over with relief. "What did you keep her standing there in the middle of the dogs for?" the woman demanded furiously. And Dulse was standing on his own doorstep, three eggs in his hand and the rain running cold down his back. It was far more convenient to him that Losen should be king than that he himself should rule Havnor openly. Men of arms didn't trust men of craft and didn't like to serve them. No matter what a mage's powers, unless he was as mighty as the Enemy of Morred, he couldn't hold armies and fleets together if the soldiers and sailors chose not to obey. People were in the habit of fearing and obeying Losen, an old habit now, and well learned. They credited him with the powers he had had of bold strategy, firm leadership, and utter cruelty; and they credited him with powers he had never had, such as mastery over the wizards who served him. it. But one hot afternoon when they came to a glade among a stand of oaks, he said, "I will come. The Changer and a thin, keen-faced old man standing beside him nodded in agreement. The Master. from an early age; and this was one of the reasons Diamond loved her. With her, he knew what. They turned back, uncertain. Their voice spoke in his mind, stronger and clearer than Gelluk's voice and spells. Through her eyes and. "Interesting," she said. His face was a warrior's face, but when he looked into the trees it was softened, yearning. The king left soon after, and the Master Windkey went with him. Before the king was to be crowned, they went to Gont and sought our lord, to find what that meant, "a woman on Gont". Eh? But they did not see him, only my countrywoman Tenar of the Ring. She said she was not the woman they sought. And they found no one, nothing. So Lebannen judged it to be a prophecy yet to be fulfilled. And in Havnor he set his crown on his own head. All magic practiced by women was called "base craft," even when. Dulse had been unable to answer at all for a while. Then, stammering, guilty at his ingratitude. She asked nothing and he said no more. Presently he got up, and she followed him to the path that. He said nothing. In fact he was at a loss. If he had known it would be this easy, he could have had her name and with it the power to make her do whatever he wanted, days ago, weeks ago, with a mere pretence at this crazy scheme - without giving up his salary and his precarious respectability, without this sea voyage, without having to go all the way to Roke for it! For he saw the whole plan now was folly. There was no way he could disguise her that would fool the Doorkeeper for a moment. All his notions of humiliating the Masters as they had humiliated him were moonshine. Obsessed with tricking the girl, he had fallen into the trap he laid for her. Bitterly he recognized that he was always believing his own lies, caught in nets he had elaborately woven. Having made a fool of himself on Roke, he had come back to do it all over again. A great, desolate anger swelled up in him. There was no good, no good in anything. "I won't sail my boat across Havnor, dear love. I plan to go around it. By water." He could always. Glade. The Lord and his Lady praised the boy's singing and gave him a tiny gold box with a diamond. At that the Changer looked at him, and after pondering said soberly, "Doorkeeper, what have you in mind?" He spoke, giving her his true name: "I am Medra." under the Kings, became common. Magic was the primary weapon in forays and battles. Wizards hired.
