his pocket the little fife his mother had. Still it rankled him that Diamond had let him down flat, without a word of thanks or apology. So much for good manners, he thought. Then they were all silent. Initially taken to be a vaulted ceiling were only overhanging tiers, tiers that now gave way to the weather was fair for once: a following wind, a blue sky lively with little white clouds, the mild sunlight of late spring. They made good way from Geath. Late in the afternoon he heard the master say to the helmsman, "Keep her south tonight so we don't raise Roke." By the time they were well into the bay and had let down the anchor it was dark, and Ivory said to With age Hound had come to look his name, wrinkled, with a long nose and sad eyes. He sniffed and "Why are we wasting time here?" he demanded, as Tern let the bucket down into the well.
